

TESTIMONIALS

Lieutenant Colonel A A C Munro MA (Hons) ME.d PGCE, Chartered MCIPD from Directorate General Training and Education, MOD:

“It is a most impressive magazine, with a wide range of subject matters, a view shared by my boss, Rear Admiral Simon Goodall. He is keen that DGT&E is seen to be taking a lead in Defence individual training and education, and wishes to retain the link we have established with you.”

Lieutenant Colonel Andrew Stevens, Chief of Staff,
HQ Defence Explosives, Munitions and Search School:

“This is a useful broad spectrum magazine which spans defence issues. Well done!”

Mr Paul Hamilton, Plans, Finance and Secretariat, DLO Nimrod IPT:

“Nice to see a number of articles from Michael Harte – a familiar face from MOD Main Building days. I particularly welcomed his piece on skills in demand.”

Tom Allen, of the Directorate for Broadening Smart Acquisition:

“On reading the DMJ, I was struck by the very broad coverage of your excellent publication – everything from ‘Defence Industry Policy’ through ‘Laptop Security’ to ‘The Sea Cadet Corps’. Another pleasing feature was the refreshing lack of jargon!”

B S Cheal, Head of Library Services, Directorate of Educational and Training Services (Army):

“The Defence Management Journal has, for many years, proved to be a very important tool for the Directorate of Educational Services (Army) in assisting in the education of army personnel. Copies are distributed to Army Education Centres and to the libraries of the Army Library Service throughout the UK and to overseas locations. “In recent times, management has been given an even higher priority in the training of service personnel: a reflection of developments in the civilian world. The Journal has become an essential publication for training purposes.”
